

Sigma Theta Tau International Honor Society of Nursing®

In 2013, The School of Nursing and Midwifery at The University of Notre Dame, in partnership with Edith Cowan University, The University of Western Australia and Curtin University, established the first Nursing Honor Society in Western Australia. The society was chartered into Sigma Theta Tau International (STTI) in 2016 and awarded the name Psi Alpha-at-Large.

Psi Alpha-at-Large is committed to STTI's vision to create a global community of nurse leaders by joining with our students to use knowledge, scholarship, service, and learning to improve the health of the world's people, achieving this through professional development that focuses on the core areas of education, leadership, career development, evidence-based nursing, research and scholarship.

Membership into the Psi Alpha-at-Large Nursing Honor Society is by invitation only and is based upon the established criteria and governing guidelines of STTI. Established criteria include academic excellence in course work and in scholarship, leadership development, and service to the community aimed at improvements in the health and well-being of society.

These guidelines require nursing students to be at least half way through the nursing program; hence all nursing students reaching the half-way point of their nursing curriculum are referred to the nominating committee of our Chapter for consideration. Those students that meet the criteria will receive an invitation from the school committee representative.

- Grade point average above 3.5 or course average of 75%
- At least 50% course completion for undergraduate students, 75% completion for postgraduate students

Since membership in the Honor Society is considered prestigious, all students who are invited to join are encouraged to take advantage of the benefits of membership in the society.
